The diagram illustrates the layout of a Japanese tea room. It features a large rectangular area representing the main room. At the bottom left, there is a small rectangular area labeled "花道" (Hanadō), which is the entrance path. To the right of this area, the main room is labeled "客席" (Kakuseki), indicating the seating area for guests. The diagram is simple, using black lines to define the boundaries and labels to identify the different sections.
